The valve was relatively hard to twist, required two hands, and when I finally got it turned the full 90° nothing happened. The closed position was with the top of the valve handle thing at 12 o'clock and the open was with the handle at 3 o'clock, so ...

With the A4, particularly with the 1.8T engine, the job is complicated just a bit, enough that it's not a simple drain-and-fill deal. The first complication is that the easiest way to drain the radiator is by opening the drain petcock, which unfortunately is blocked by the side-mounted intercooler's ducting.
