Advice And Dissent Why America

"In Advice and Dissent, economic sage Alan Blinder offers brilliant insights into why politicians so often rely on economics for support but not illumination, with the economy suffering as a consequence. Blinder's perceptive ideas to transform good economics into good politics makes it a must-read for everyone interested in a stronger economy and for economists who need the political savvy to contribute to the policy process."—

Advice and Dissent: Why America Suffers When Economics and ...

Advice and Dissent is based on the hundred year-old Lamppost Theory, which says that drunks depend on lampposts for support, not illumination. So with politicians, apparently. They use economists to support their own positions, not for insights or solutions. The main problem is the Madison Curse, Blinder says.

Economists sometimes overlook the real human costs of what may seem to be the obviously best policy - to a calculating machine. In Advice and Dissent, Blinder shows how both sides can shrink the yawning gap between good politics and good economics and encourage the hardheaded but softhearted policies our country so desperately needs.
