My Jewish Faith My Faith

My Jewish Faith My Faith Judaism does not require faith statements as a sign of legitimacy. Judaism does not ask Jews to give up their questions or to deny their doubt. In Jewish spiritual life, faith is not the starting point of the journey. Uncertainty is not the enemy of religious and spiritual growth. Doubt is what fuels the journey.

From Belief to Faith | My Jewish Learning

Educating myself and studying the belief structure of Judaism, increases my dialogue with God and therefore the quality of everything in my life. I have embraced Judaism because it enhances my faith in God. Its prayers, songs, and rituals bring God's presence into my life every day. No one asked me to allow Judaism to do that for me, it just did. Every day, I try to make the teachings I obtain from Judaism more of what I am and what I do.

Jewish people are strictly monotheist, believing in one God as an omniscient, omnipotent, and omnibenevolent being. In Judaism, God is eternal, having always existed and will continue to exist endlessly. There is a distinct lack of angels or other such intermediate godly figures.

Jewish Faith vs. Christian Faith - Life-Enhancing Ideas

For so long, I had based my Jewish identity around the other Jews present in my life. I was Jewish because of the lessons I learned from my enthusiastic religious school teachers, the passionate sermons I heard from my Rabbi, the endless memories I shared with my URJ camp friends, and the events I planned with my temple's youth group board.

The theory that the Decalogue was the foundation of Judaism, its article of faith, was advocated Isaac Abravanel (see his Commentary on Ex. xx. 1); and in recent years by Isaac M. Wise of Cincinnati in his "Catechism" and other writings. The only confession of faith, however, which, though not so denominated, has found universal acceptance ...

Articles of Faith - Jewish Virtual Library

Faith, and by that I mean one's ability to access the divine, does not se em to me to occupy the central place in Jewish spirituality that it does for Christianity. Sure faith is important, but acting, or pretending, like you have faith is not only more important but, fortunately, something over which most of us have at least some control.
